QUINCY — Two people were taken to local hospitals after a three-car crash on West Squantum Street on Monday morning.

Quincy Police Sgt. Karyn Barkas said one of the cars was heading east near the Presidents Golf Course just after 7 a.m. when it crossed over the line and hit another car heading west on the other side of the road. She said the second car rolled over while the first car kept going, crashing head-on into a third car.

The drivers of the first and third cars were brought separately to South Shore Hospital and Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton, Barkas said. The intersection of London Avenue and West Squantum Street was closed to traffic.

Quincy police say the crash is under investigation.
